

The 1st ACCS Brown Bag Event

Day/Time: June 9th/6pm Pacific (9pm Eastern)

Location: WeChat (group location TBA)

Dr. Hairong Feng is an associate professor at University of Minnesota Duluth. She specializes in interpersonal communication, intercultural communication, and health communication.

Dr. Min Jiang is an associate professor from University of North Carolina at Charlotte. She specializes in new media studies, political communication, international communication,

Dr. Bo Feng is an associate professor from UC Davis. She specializes in interpersonal, supportive, and intercultural communication.

Event description

Each guest speaker will have 10-15 mins to share their thoughts on grant application, paper publication, and academic jobs. For the next 10-15 mins, our moderators will ask a few specific questions that have been collected from our members. The last 10 min is a free Q & A session. The audience are welcomed to come up with their own questions.

Brown Bag Event General Purpose/Development

The Brown Bag events are intended to promote better communication on practical topics, such as developments in the job market, methodological shifts in the field, or potential funding opportunities.

Based on feedback from our members, Pei Zheng, chair of the external committee, and Yunkang Yang, co-chair of the student committee, proposed Brown Bag events, one-hour conversations between guest speakers and our ACCS members. We asked our members to propose topics of interest. We then aggregated these suggestions and proposed the topics to junior and senior scholars in our mailing list.